* The equality duty is set out in section 149 of the Equality Act 2010. The General Duty has three aims. It requires public bodies to pay due regard to the need to:

- eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment, victimisation and any other conduct prohibited by the Act;
- advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it; and
- foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.

**Having due regard means consciously thinking about the three aims of the equality duty as part of the process of decision-making. Decision makers need to ensure they do not discriminate against people on the grounds of the following "protected characteristics". They are age; disability; gender reassignment; marriage and civil partnership; pregnancy and maternity; race; religion or belief; sex; and sexual orientation.
